

There was a glow coming from the runway at Vancouver Fashion Week this season, and you can thank bucket loads of sequins for that! Unlike the usual systematically placed, shiny sequins that usually accompany formal-wear, this season was all about the matte sequin look. With an oceanic feel, matte sequins sewn haphazardly were featured in the collections of Lila Nova, Linda Sipilä, Eva Chen, Hatice Ipek Tohumcu, and many others. Seen in formal dresses as well as casual wear (as paneling or leggings), matte sequins were offered to us in a variety of underwater hues. Dark teal, green, aqua and navy showcased this megatrend as a very wearable look: not too flashy, but a little bit of shine.

<http://www.doctorswivesliving.com/vancouver-fashion-week-2013-megatrends/>